This ticket will grant access to the event only to the holder of the entitlement to attend the event (cf. Clause 10 of the tickets.de General Terms and Conditions), who accordingly has received a ticket personalized in his or her name. Such holder must be able to identify himself/herself by submitting a valid passport, personal identity card, driver's license, credit card or EC bank card. The purchaser of the ticket may transfer his or her rights and obligations under the contract with the event organizer (and thus also the right to demand access to the event) to a third party only by that third party acceding in the purchaser's stead to the contract with the event organizer, and such third party accepting all of the purchaser's rights and obligations. The provisions made in the General Terms and Conditions (which have been published on www.tickets.de) apply in this regard. This accession to the contract requires the consent of the event organizer. The transfer of the right to attend the event enjoyed by the further persons for whom the purchaser has also ordered tickets shall likewise be subject to the consent of the event organizer. These consents are hereby granted in advance, subject to the restrictions set out hereinbelow. For reasons of fairness and by way of preventing tickets from being re-sold at inflated prices (scalping), thus also preventing any negative impacts on the event organizer's reputation, the event organizer will not grant its consent to a third party acceding to the contract with it, or to the right to attend the event being transferred, in the following cases: a) Forwarding or selling the Online Tickets without the consent of the event organizer, or acquiring them on behalf of a third party

, where this is done in the context of commercial or business activities; b) Where the Online Tickets are offered for sale in the context of internet auctions not authorized by the event organizer; c) Where the Online Tickets are sold at a price that is higher than the original price of the tickets plus convenience charge and plus any expenditures that the seller may have incurred otherwise as a result of the acquisition or re-sale of the tickets (as a maximum, however, 15% of the original price plus the convenience charge); d) Where the Online Tickets are sold with the intent of making a profit, or where they are acquired on behalf of a third party in order to obtain a profit by the brokerage activity; e) Where the Online Tickets are forwarded or sold for advertisement or marketing purposes, as a bonus, as a promotional gift or a prize, or as part of any hospitality or travel package not authorized by the event organizer; f) In the event of any sale of Online Tickets without any reference being made to the General Terms and Conditions. In such events, forwarding and/or re-selling Online Tickets is prohibited. In the event of a violation of the prohibitions set out hereinabove, the event organizer is entitled to disable the tickets concerned. For any instance in which the above prohibitions are culpably breached, the event organizer moreover is entitled to demand that the purchaser of the ticket pay a contractual penalty. The General Terms and Conditions have provided for the details (in Clause 10.6., and have been published online at www.tickets.de). Following the transfer to a third party of the entitlement to attend the event, the Online Ticket must be re-personalized (Clause 11 of the General Terms and Conditions).
